

LIST of MATERIALS and RESOURCES for Women Human Rights Defenders

This compilation of resources for women human rights defenders at risk is the result of a research endeavor launched by the Association for Women's Rights in Development (AWID) in collaboration with the Women Human Rights Defenders International Coalition, in particular with its working group on urgent responses. The aim of the compilation is to provide women human rights defenders with a reference tool of existing resources that may be useful to their work and to those facing risks.

The compilation lists existing research materials dealing with the safety, security and protection of defenders, resources that women activists can consult concerning their wellbeing and self-care, manuals dealing with how to document and monitor violations of women's rights and how to conduct trial observation, as well as manuals on the rights and mechanisms available to women human rights defenders at risk. The compilation also references materials that address specific themes particularly relevant to women defenders, such as sexual orientation, religious fundamentalisms and conflict.

General information on WHRDs

Claiming Rights, Claiming Justice: A Guidebook for Women Human Rights Defenders

Asia Pacific Forum on Women, Law and Development (2007)

DESCRIPTION: This Guidebook is designed to raise awareness and increase the understanding of the specific issues and situations confronted by WHRDs. It presents a typology of specific violations, restrictions and abuses that is aimed at helping women defenders identify the specific risks, violations and constraints they face in their work. The Guidebook also presents practical information on different mechanisms developed by the state, civil society, the United Nations and other regional human rights bodies to provide redress and remedy, and to protect women human rights defenders.

Security in-a-box: Tools and Tactics for your Digital Security

Tactical Technology Collective and Front Line International Foundation for the Protection of Human Rights Defenders

DESCRIPTION: This toolkit provides the required knowledge to recognize digital security threats as well as the necessary tools to address those threats. The toolkit has three major components: the How-to Booklet, the Hands-on Guides and Portable Security. The How-to Booklet identifies and describes risks and assists defenders to decide how best to reduce them. It addresses questions concerning basic security, data protection and communication privacy. The Hands-on Guides explain how to use a particular freeware or Open Source software tool and provide step-by-step explanations to assist defenders to use those tools. Software can be installed directly from the Hands-on Guide or downloaded free of charge from the tool developer's website. The last component, Portable Security, provides 'portable' versions of a few important Security in-a-box tools. These versions can be installed directly onto a USB memory stick so that defenders can use them from any computer.

Documenting & Monitoring

Documenting Women's Rights Violations by Non-state Actors

written by Jan Bauer and Anissa Hélie and published by International Centre for Human Rights and Democratic Development & Women Living Under Muslim Laws (2006)

DESCRIPTION: For years, the accepted wisdom was that human rights principles and law applied only, or mainly, to the mediation of the relationship between citizens and the State. This view was held and promoted by, among others, academics, lawyers and jurists, as well as many international non-governmental organizations (INGOs) and activists. This manual examines violations perpetrated by non-state actors and addresses how activists can document and campaign to address violence committed against women by non-state actors. The manual provides activists with additional tools in the struggle against impunity.
